Reviewer's report:

General
The submitted case report describes the diagnostic procedure and therapy of a very rare case where the malignant fibrous histiocytoma developed on the base of benign fibrous histiocytoma. The description of the histological findings is very up-to-date and proved the fact of malignant transformation of the benign lesion. The case report is very informative and can be used for postgraduate education containing the description of the necessary examinations, histological evaluations. The description of surgical therapy is clear, well illustrated, the performed method is absolute exact. I recommend this work for publication without any changes.
