Reviewer's report

Title: What can management theories offer evidence-based practice? A comparative analysis of measurement tools for organisational context

Version: 2 Date: 11 March 2009

Reviewer: Graeme Currie

Reviewer's report:

The authors have responded well to my first round review. I now suggest the following Minor Essential Revisions:

1. The authors position the article as 'critical realist'. This seems an 'unrealistic' claim on the basis of the content of the paper, although I note that the authors are now more reflexive about measurement tools. I suggest the reference to critical realism is removed. However, should the authors wish to persist with this claim, then additional cites and an explanation of why the article is positioned as 'critical realist' is required.

2. The first line of the abstract puts an emphasis upon networks. I am agreeable to this. However, this is not followed through. I suggest the authors add a couple of lines in the main part of the paper that highlights congruence between the development of networked forms of service delivery and knowledge management

Level of interest: An article of importance in its field

Quality of written English: Acceptable

Statistical review: Yes, but I do not feel adequately qualified to assess the statistics.

Declaration of competing interests:

I declare that I have no competing interests