Comments to authors:

I will comment, however, on the fact that there are several grammatical errors and spacing/punctuation errors that would need to be corrected before publication. In addition, the actual medication whose use is being described in the case report, eltrombopag, is spelled incorrectly at several points. The word "moreover" is used a bit too often as well. My advice for the next step is to proofread/revise and resubmit based on grammatical errors alone. In my opinion, it is an article of importance in its field and would need some language corrections before being published.
