Comments to authors:

It's an unusual case report and draws attention to hypervitaminosis D presenting as persistent vomiting. This is important in view of widespread prescription of Vitamin D.

However there is need for improvement in English.

In Introduction: it should be plays and not play.

Later in Introduction: it is stated that: "This consumption should be encouraged by sun exposure, fortified or enriched foods...." Sentence needs to rewritten. Last line of introduction: But should be replaced by "However".

Case Presentation:
1st Para: It should be months and not month.

3rd Para: It should be: "Investigation" and not "Investigations"

In Discussion section too: 'but' and 'although' are used inappropriately.
Statements/Details of Vitamin D levels should go to "Case Presentation" section.
Last Para of Discussion states: "was detected to the same level". This makes no sense and needs correction.

CONCLUSION:
This needs modification.
"but prevent ongoing acute kidney injury" should be replaced with "but can prevent acute kidney injury too"

REFERENCE Section:
The following reference should have been quoted:
Last Reference seems incomplete. Needs to be Checked.

Quality of written English: Needs some language corrections before being published
