Reviewer's report

Title: Parents' perceptions on offspring risk and prevention of anxiety and depression: A Qualitative Study

Version: 2 Date: 27 May 2014

Reviewer: Helen M Correia

Reviewer's report:

Thank you for the opportunity to provide additional commentary on this submission. The authors have made considerable attempts to address the suggested revisions, and there is greater clarity in the paper. The specific use of "grounded theory" in this study would benefit from further clarification and discussion (given the various debates on various grounded theory approaches and methodologies). Nonetheless, this does not detract from the authors’ attempts to follow a systematic approach to qualitative analysis, and further discussion about the analysis and interpretation should now be left to take place within the research community. Overall, the study provides important insights into parents' perceptions and participation in clinical research, and will hopefully contribute to improved engagement in such programs.

Level of interest: An article whose findings are important to those with closely related research interests

Quality of written English: Acceptable

Statistical review: No, the manuscript does not need to be seen by a statistician.

Declaration of competing interests:

I declare that I have no competing interests