I have attempted to communicate my reservations via email to the editor but I guess I need to do it here. This is what I wrote.

Please advise the authors to have this paper translated into standard English syntax. After that is done, I will undertake the level of effort that if will require to review it, but right now it will be too frustrating. Also, it is not clear why some of the changes are in yellow highlight (and readable) and others are in blue highlighting and not readable. If they are meant to be read in the printed version, please change the color to something feasible.

We have made a lot of progress with this paper but until it is made easier to read, which means finding someone to translate it into clear English, I am not willing to undertake the unnecessary effort that will be needed to help the authors create an important research paper.
