Title: Routine Creatine Kinase Testing Does Not Provide Clinical Utility in the Emergency Department for Diagnosis of Acute Coronary Syndromes

Version: 0 Date: 07 May 2019

Reviewer's report:

I have read with great pleasure the manuscript of Evan J. Wiens et al., and I am of the opinion that the results must be confirmed on a larger scale, but they already give a precise indication to the uselessness of some exams that we continue to require. The work is clear and timely. Congratulations to the authors.
