Reviewer's report:

thank you, ands sorry for being slow on this. there are some minor issues with the English to address, but i am very impressed with the paper. It is very well written and, while it is of limited external validity, it is a very useful piece in the community first aider literature. well done. the background is good.methods are very well described.results are comprehensive.i would like some discussion on the impact - the majority had treated "at least 1" patient in 6 months. does this make it worthwhile? also, while the lack of control group is well explained as a limitation, what is the external validity of this study? how can it be used outside of Dar? conclusion is good
