Reviewer's report:

The authors of this manuscript address development of guidelines for an important and timely topic, specifically the optimal management of infants with bronchiolitis who are seen in the ED or hospitalized on a ward. Recommendations for infants admitted for intensive care will not be address and this exclusion may disappoint some readers.

The reader is left somewhat in suspense, eager to see the guidelines and recommendations which apparently will be presented elsewhere. Oftentimes, this discussion of methodology is included in the publication. This paper presents a description of guideline development and if that is felt to warrant a separate publication, perhaps the two can be published concurrently.
