Title: Circular stripes were more common in Barrett’s esophagus after acetic acid staining

Version: 0 Date: 06 Dec 2017

Reviewer: Giuseppe Fanelli

Reviewer's report:

Treated topics are of interest and could have a immediate feedback in clinical and pathological practice. After the major revisions article is well organized and well written.

I have some minor revisions to suggest:

- You have to stress the concept that about 60% of people with gastroesophageal reflux are asymptomatic also in the results section, and you can add these data in table1;

- the phrase "There is no doubt that BE has attracted....." is too informal;

- you can delete spaces before fullstops;

- you have to use the same font.

Thanks a lot for the article resubmission.
