Reviewer’s report:

Good to see nonparametric correlations are now explicitly mentioned.

Just one final comment:

Page 15, lines 51-53. There appears to be no direct mention in the discussion of the association between Geriatric Depression and Behavioural Intention flagged as r=0.93. I think what you imply in the discussion is that this association of Behavioural Intention with depression is explained by the high correlation between Geriatric Depressive Symptoms and Perceived Severity (line 4 on page 16) since the latter association with Behavioural Intention is discussed (page 21, lines 28-55). Is this correct and if so, is it worth briefly adding in to the discussion?
