Reviewer’s summary

After the 2nd round of manuscript revision, the authors adequately addressed the all the comments and questions pointed out by reviewers. I am personally quite satisfied with the quality of the submitted manuscript in both language and contents matter. Therefore, I would consider that the current manuscript is now ready for publication in the BMC infectious diseases journal at this stage. I believe that this information included in the manuscript would add the epidemiologically important information for the public health sector within China and elsewhere with respect to the public health-related decision making in the future.
