Reviewer’s report

Title: Health care workers' knowledge, attitudes and practices on tuberculosis infection control, Nepal

Version: 0 Date: 07 May 2017

Reviewer: Edward Nardell

Reviewer's report:

Although the authors adequately report poor understanding of TB IC among HCWs, they fail to report exactly what exposure to these concepts (education or training) that HCWs would have had - if any? If they have had no training one would expect poor understanding, and, ideally, that data could be used to target future training. There is no indication that this KAPA was intended for planning training or for before and after comparison. In essence, the survey outcome was entirely predicable and contributed little to our understanding of TB IC and how to improve it. The time spent surveying workers might have been better spent educating workers about the subject matter.
