This is a well conducted randomised trial addressing an important practical issue in syphilis care. Although general clinical practice has shifted towards using a local anaesthetic diluent for benzathine penicillin this has happened without a robust evidence base. This paper provides much needed evidence to support the use of local anaesthetic and this should lead to better tolerated therapy which is particularly important as we encourage more widespread testing and treatment for syphilis.

Are the methods appropriate and well described?
If not, please specify what is required in your comments to the authors.
