Title: Adnexal torsion in the third trimester of pregnancy: A case report and diagnostic value of magnetic resonance imaging

Version: 0 Date: 18 Dec 2019

Reviewer: Simone Maurea

Reviewer's report:

Interesting case report underlining the role of MRI in adnexal torsion during pregnancy; the authors support the role of MRI compared to ultrasound (US) for its high contrast resolution; however, no US images are available in the manuscript for direct comparison with MRI; the authors should provide US images to better demonstrate the superiority of MRI in terms of imaging quality and thus diagnostic capability in this issue.
