Title: Quantitative home-based assessment of Parkinson’s symptoms: The SENSE-PARK feasibility and usability study

Version: 2 Date: 28 April 2015

Reviewer's report:

One: Methods/technology overview;
   Line 121 Error, reference source not found.....
   This error also appeared in the First draught of the manuscript. I’m not sure what this is, but it looks somewhat sloppy.

Two: The manuscript has much improved with respect to the english write up.

Three: I still find the paper (too) long, but apparently the authors explicitly chose to publish the feasibility and usability as a separate paper. The BMC Neurology editor has to decide whether this is acceptable.
