Title: How diet, physical activity and psychosocial well-being interact in women with Gestational Diabetes Mellitus: An integrative review

Reviewer's report:

The authors satisfactorily addressed all of my major comments. However, I want to follow up two details.

1. I believe my minor comment #1 was misunderstood. GDM is defined as "glucose intolerance with onset or first recognition during pregnancy". The key point is the timing of onset/recognition, but not a lower diagnostic threshold.

2. I checked your citation for GDM prevalence (5, 6 & 7) (minor comment #2), but was unable to find the sentence you cited in your response. Besides, you should cite the original studies reporting the prevalence of GDM in UAE and China, not a study citing these studies. Although the true prevalence of GDM is unknown in the global population, but an estimate of global prevalence of 17.8-23.1% seems too high from what I know. For example, the US CDC estimated the prevalence is 9.2% in the US. See "Prevalence Estimates of Gestational Diabetes Mellitus in the United States, Pregnancy Risk Assessment Monitoring System (PRAMS), 2007-2010"
