Title: Mother-Infant Bonding is not Associated with Feeding Type: A Community Study Sample

Version: 1 Date: 17 Jun 2018

Reviewer: Louise Brough

Reviewer's report:

I am still concerned the authors are overstating their results.

In my initial review I suggested the authors state that this is not a representative sample. the authors rebutted this stating they did not agree as the breastfeeding distributions may be representative. However, the authors themselves state "the distribution of socio-economic characteristics was not representative of the larger population" also they are recruited solely via the internet. I do not agree this should be left to the end of the discussion, the fact the sample is not representative needs to be made clear early in the discussion (not at the end), and also in the abstract.
