Title: The ugly side of cosmetic anterior chamber iris implants

Version: 2 Date: 18 April 2015

Reviewer: Majid Moshirfar

Reviewer's report:

Major Points:

1. I recommend author to refer to the delayed onset interface fluid syndrome (IFS) as PISK, which is known as pressure induced stromal keratopathy. PISK is a better-recognized abbreviation after LASIK than IFS.

2. Please add the following reference to your paper. It is an important review article of previously published case series:

   Complications related to the explantation of cosmetic iris implant

3. Please add this following reference describing a surgical technique for explanting such implants:

   Complications of NewColorIris implantation in phakic eyes: a review.

4. On page 3, line 68; please edit and rephrase the following sentence: … gentleman presented to the Accident and Emergency department.

5. On page 5, line 116; please change Fundal examination to Fundus examination.

6. On page 4, lin3 88, please rephrase the following sentence: “He was reviewed in the anterior segment clinic three days later.”
