Title: Serratia marcescens endophthalmitis after pterygium surgery : A case report

Version: 0 Date: 22 Mar 2017

Reviewer: Shmuel Levartovsky

Reviewer's report:

This case report will not add any new value to the literature.

The bare sclera technique while doing pterygium surgery is inadequate nowadays and should not be practiced since it has several unaccepted complications like scleral melting and pyogenic granuloma.
