The manuscript reported a rare case of trochleitis associated with paranasal sinusitis.

1. I think this case might be belong to IgG4-related disease. Serum IgG4 exam was necessary. To my necessary, paranasal sinusitis is very common in IgG4-RD. IgG4-RD is mainly treated with administration of glucocorticoids, which has satisfied effect. However, some patients will relapse in our follow-up. So, I recommend close follow up the case and exam the serum IgG4 level.

2. The author should add a clinical general photograph.
