Title: Early bleb parameters as long-term prognostic factors for surgical success: a retrospective observational study using three-dimensional anterior-segment optical coherence tomography

Version: 3  Date: 07 Jun 2019

Reviewer: Akiko Narita

Reviewer's report:

I agree with the editor in that this manuscript has been improved significantly.

In addition, the following points need to be addressed.

1) The authors showed in the revised manuscript that this study had included the eyes with either a limbus-based or a fornix-based conjunctival flap. Regarding Table 1 and 2, "design of conjunctival flap" probably should be used instead of "design of scleral flap".

2) "Number at risk" is the number of subjects at risk at various times in the survival analysis.
