This is a potentially interesting paper. The main weakness is the results are inadequately presented. As the sample size is small, the authors should present individual data in a figure for CD64 in and WCC in CSF. I note that the SD is large. This would allow the reader to visually identify the usefulness of the test. Also, the text in the results section is inadequate. The authors need to highlight the key findings in each table/figure. I have not commented on the discussion as without the full results, this is not possible.

Are the methods appropriate and well described?
