Reviewer's report:

The study is quite interesting and shows important results, which add to the knowledge about this patients with 45,X/46,XY mosaicism. I have only a few suggestions to make. I suggest removing the space that exists in the description of the karyotypes, that is, all numbers and letters must be together: 45,X/46,XY. In the text, I suggest removing ".0" from the values that describe it. For example, remove the ".0" from 50.0% and leave 50%. Although the text is generally well written, it could have an improvement on some points. In some places some word or article seems to be missing. In Table 1, I suggest removing the % of the described values from the cell lines and placing it as the top of the column - Karyotype (%/%). I think the article should be accepted and published after these minor corrections.
