Title: Assessment of Grief-Related Rumination: Validation of the German Version of the Utrecht Grief Rumination Scale (UGRS)

Version: 0 Date: 14 Dec 2017

Reviewer: Eleonora Gattoni

Reviewer’s report:

Authors aim to develop and validate the German version of the Utrecht Grief Rumination Scale - UGRS. In conclusion the translated version showed very good psychometric properties. Moreover Authors underlined the clinical relevance of grief rumination.

The article is well written and the study was well conducted.

I would like to suggest to add in the Methods section the recruitment period.

Considering that Authors aim to validate a scale into another language, probably it would be better to conduct a sampling procedure that ensured a random selection in order to recruit a representative sample. Anyway they extensively discuss limitations in the discussion section, but I personally think it could be better to add limitations also in the abstract.
