PEER REVIEWER COMMENTS:

GENERAL COMMENTS: My overall impression of the study was mixed. The text was difficult to follow, and therefore, the rationale for the study was not presented in a way that I fully understood how the variables related to one another.

The hypotheses were appropriate. They chose well-validated measures, and the statistical analysis plan was appropriate. Their interpretations of their statistics were correct.

ADDITIONAL REQUESTS/SUGGESTIONS:

This manuscript would be significantly improved by utilizing an editor to assist with the expression of ideas. In its current form, the manuscript lacks sophistication and depth. The text in the Introduction and Discussion were particularly difficult to follow. It reads more like a term paper than like a peer-reviewed journal article. The rationale/proposed model to be tested was missing some connections that would allow the reader to understand the expected relationships among the different variables. In the Discussion, the results were repeated but were not adequately woven into the context of the existing literature, nor could I understand the implications of this research for further studies.
