Title: A Review of Autobiographical Memory Studies on Patients with Schizophrenia Spectrum Disorders

Version: 2 Date: 15 May 2019

Reviewer: Jorge Javier Ricarte Trives

Reviewer's report:

Congratulations on your work, the article has changed dramatically in a very good form.

Just a minor clarification to be considered:
In Table 1, study 56, Nieto e tal., 2018, you conclude that "the high number of no reported memories from childhood in patients appeared to go against the framework of the CARFAX model’s functional avoidance mechanism"

In my opinión, authors wanted suggest just the opposite, that that result (lack of memories from childhood in patients) suggest to support the functional avoidance hypothesis (they avoid remembering specific events from childhood). I would change the word "against" for some other word like "in agreement with", "appeared to support"...
