Reviewer's report:

Dear authors,

Thank you for such wonderful revision.
I've few more suggestions that could be made to improve your article:

1. Only few pertinent findings could be mentioned in the results than repeating everything present in the table.

2. It's better to mention the numbers(n) with the percentage(%) rather than percentage alone. You might have done that as your sample size is less but still it's better to mention the numbers.

3. My statistics is not that strong. Even then, I see no point of mentioning the "overall p-value" in table 2.

Are the methods appropriate and well described?
