Major Compulsory Revisions

The revised manuscript became better but I still wonder why the authors miss the information of "actual" working time including overtime hours. This is because among full-time workers someone works 40 hours per week and another person works 60 hours. This may influences work engagement. Thus, the authors should adjust this variable when considering the association between work engagement and occupation sitting time. If the authors do not have such information, it should be mentioned as a limitation of this study.
