Reviewer's report

Title: Sexual Behavior and Vulnerability to HIV Infection among Seasonal Migrant Laborers in Metema District, Northwest Ethiopia: A Cross-Sectional Study.

Version: 3  Date: 19 July 2014

Reviewer: Stevan M Weine

Reviewer's report:

This is an interesting article, well-written, addressing a significant public health problem, with strong methodology. It is weakened by the issues below, which are addressable.

Major compulsory revisions

1. The issue of marriage and spouses role could be important. Analysis should be conducted around whether marriage was a factor in HIV risk/protection. Also, did reviewers ask if husband spoke with spouses?

2. There is no discussion of religion and what role it could play.

3. There is no mention of theory or a conceptual framework guiding this review. The authors need to make this explicit and let it inform their analysis and discussion.

Level of interest: An article whose findings are important to those with closely related research interests

Quality of written English: Acceptable

Statistical review: Yes, and I have assessed the statistics in my report.
