Title: Impact of migration origin on individual protection strategies against sexual transmission of HIV in Paris metropolitan area, SIRS cohort study, France.

Version: 3  Date: 10 May 2015

Reviewer's report:

I appreciate the author’s effort to address my concerns. I still have a few comments which are listed below.

Minor Essential Revisions

There are still some awkward sentences and problems with grammar.

1. Abstract (conclusions – line 2): “...populations in consideration when designing information...” should be “...populations into consideration when designing information...”

2. Background (line 9): An important part of people having migrated to France have settled in Paris and its suburbs.

The above sentence is very awkward.

3. Methods (migration origin – line 2): “We defined participants' “migration origin” on the basis of their nationality and their parents’ ones.”

Perhaps say the following instead: We defined participants' “migration origin” on the basis of both their nationality and their parents’ nationality.

Level of interest: An article whose findings are important to those with closely related research interests

Quality of written English: Acceptable

Statistical review: No, the manuscript does not need to be seen by a statistician.
