Title: Responses to provision of personalised cancer risk information: a qualitative interview study with members of the public

Version: 0 Date: 21 May 2017

Reviewer: Dimitrios Koutoukidis

Reviewer's report:

This is a well-written article of a qualitative study on the general public views on personalised cancer risk information. Its findings can be useful for the design of future cancer prevention programmes.

Please add the completed COREQ checklist as a supplementary file and add any necessary information where applicable.

It is unclear in the methodology if the data were coded by one or two researchers. It would be useful to check their inter rater reliability (e.g. with a kappa statistic).

It might also be useful to have a shorter final conclusion.
