Reviewer’s report

Title: Cannabis use and the risk of tuberculosis: A systematic review

Version: 0 Date: 11 Apr 2019

Reviewer: Jakob Manthey

Reviewer's report:

This systematic review is well written and presents the available literature in a concise and balanced way. I appreciate that the authors make their decision transparent to include studies without comparator groups as these studies are of low quality. However, given the lack of high-quality studies I think it is reasonable to include these studies in this review.

My professional expertise does not allow to comment on the TB part of the review, but the cannabis and epidemiologic aspects are well covered and discussed.

Are the methods appropriate and well described?
