Reviewer's report:

The authors have examined "Effectiveness of community outreach HIV prevention programs in Vietnam: A mixed method evaluation". Evaluation of an HIV intervention is very important but the current work was done 10 years ago. The findings of the work may not be applicable unless there is a more recent data analysis. In addition, there was no clear objective of the intervention which the evaluation exercise tends to assess. This makes it confusing especially in the introduction part of the work. In this current state, this work requires additional recent evaluation to make it relevant for publication.
