Reviewer’s report:

The authors evaluated the ability of CT and MRI in assessing restoration and function after subtotal cystectomy.

The manuscript is really well written and study is really well organized. Title of the manuscript is representative of the manuscript content. Introduction is clear; states the background on the topic, limitations of the existing methodologies and the need for the imaging modalities. outcomes of the study are clearly stated.

Methods are slightly too much of technological details. Not sure how much benefit would this provide to urological audience.

Results are clear and impressive. Discussion is good. conclusions are provided based on the data driven from the study.

Overall, i would recommend it for publication if the Editor agrees there is a space for the manuscript.
