Reviewer's report:

This is a nice contribution about an excellent resource. The GREAT database is a very useful tool, both clinically and for research.

I think this is a well-written report and that it does a very good job of showcasing the database’s strengths and the few weaknesses it does have.

Such papers are always a little difficult to judge because the primary outcome is--to some extent--to simply show that the GREAT database is a viable resource, and, to secondarily remind the community to consider using it. However, I think these are worthy and important goals.
