Authors showed that Neosalus penetrate into the viable epidermis and has antimicrobial properties. The study was done in line of good clinical practice and is worth to be published.

I would like the authors to explain the antimicrobial properties, how is Neosalus able to do that? Or is it only indirectly by repairing the skin barrier?

Are the methods appropriate and well described?
If not, please specify what is required in your comments to the authors.

Yes

Does the work include the necessary controls?
If not, please specify which controls are required in your comments to the authors.
