Title: Generic Quality of Life in Persons with Hearing Loss: A Systematic Literature Review

Version: 2 Date: 04 Dec 2017

Reviewer: Bolajoko O. Olusanya

Reviewer’s report:

The aim of this study was to establish, from a review of the literature, the quality of life (QoL) status in individuals with hearing loss (HL) and the demonstrable degree of improvement with the use of hearing aids. The authors' conclusions from the detailed review of 20 qualifying articles were

1) Equivocal association established between QoL and HL

2) Some improvement was demonstrable in QoL within the first year of hearing aid use.

3) HL is a risk factor for distress.

4) Need for further research to more accurately establish the relationship between HL and generic QoL.

Overall, the current version is well written, clearer and much improved over the previous ones.
