Title: Pheochromocytoma as a rare cause of hypertension in a 46 X, i(X)(q10) Turner syndrome: a case report and literature review

Version: 0 Date: 04 Feb 2018

Reviewer's report:

Interesting case presentation that highlights a rare but potentially lethal cause of hypertension in Turner syndrome. Although a causative relationship cannot be established due to scarcity of relative reports, and hence a proposition for regular screening of patients would be superfluous, this case reports alert us not miss the diagnosis of pheochromocytoma in patients with additional symptoms or adrenal incidentalomas, who would have otherwise been subjected to biochemical testing according to current guidelines.
