Title: Primary hyperparathyroidism presenting as a brown tumor in the Mandible: A case report

Version: 0 Date: 10 Nov 2019

Reviewer: Maria Laura Tanda

Reviewer's report:

The clinical case is well described and is provided with a good and complete iconography. The discussion is rather poor but sufficient. It would be appreciated if the authors argued the pros and cons of a more extensive serum calcium screening in the general population or in all cases of bone lesions as a first level examination. For me, even if the manuscript does not present particular news on the subject, it is suitable for publication.
