Version: 0 Date: 12 Jan 2017

Reviewer: Ismael Darout

Reviewer's report:

This is a very interesting study which reflects how disability and specially impairment of vision can affect the oral hygiene knowledge and behavior. The study is well-designed and the appropriate method for data analysis was used. However, gender differences are important in such studies to reach a proper conclusion. Social segregation was always the reason why such studies are not completed matching males and females.
