Reviewer's report:

Thank you very much for sharing this relatively rare case presentation. However, in my opinion, the presentation of the case report needs to be improved. The management of this patient from the first presentation to the final outcome is poorly documented with very little clarity of the timeline events. The diagnostic process needs to be better described to justify your approach. the way the case is presented does not showcase any clinical significance other than it's rarity. In particular, if you were able to discuss why the first presentation led to an incorrect diagnosis and what made you approach differently would have been an interesting read for the journals readership. Secondly, the follow-up was very short and is inadequate. The treatment plan adopted needs better justification and discussion.
