The work entitled 'Effect of parathyroid hormone-related protein on odontogenic differentiation in human dental pulp cells' is well designed and written to show clearly the hypothesis by experimental data, and needs minor revision as commented below:

1. Pls state why the time period for cell culture was determined?

2. Some more information on cell cultures needs to be described.

3. Some of the key recent studies on the dental pulp stem cells should be cited to feedback recent research trend in this field.
