Reviewer's report:

The authors have addressed most of my comments in a satisfactory manner. My last three comments were only partially addressed. Of note, "clinically meaningful change" or "clinically meaningful difference" are used to indicate not only changes in measures used in clinical settings but to provide an estimate of what level of change in a given score represent a meaningful change for the patients or their careers. As such, it is important to provide an estimate of what level of change in the Scared score and Fear and helplessness scores represent a quantifiable, i.e. identifiable, important, change for the career.

Are the methods appropriate and well described?
If not, please specify what is required in your comments to the authors.

Yes

Does the work include the necessary controls?
