Reviewer's report:

The Authors have adequately responded to most of the suggested revisions. There is still a need to more fully explain the analysis process beyond referring to the type of analysis. There is also a need to deepen your findings. As it currently stands, the findings do not warrant the depth of analysis or discussion. There is not enough qualitative evidence to support some of the larger claims you are making. Perhaps the way around this is to be clear that a women living with HIV has a similar journey to motherhood (or not) as other women however, the women in this study demonstrate that HIV adds a layer of complexity regarding these decisions. Making clinicians and other professionals who support women living with HIV aware of these issues will ensure that women living with HIV are supported in fulfilling their desires to have children (if they do indeed want to become pregnant) and in the early days of motherhood....
