Title: Core competencies in genetics for healthcare professionals: results from a literature review and a Delphi method

Version: 0 Date: 27 Nov 2018

Reviewer: Mavilde Arantes

Reviewer’s report:

In this manuscript authors identified, based on results from a literature review and a Delphi method, the core competencies in genetics for healthcare professionals. The topic is very current, interesting and worthy of investigation, and the authors present their results clearly. The paper is potential of value to the reader.

Only call attention to one point: Text of the manuscript should be reviewed by a native English editor for grammar and context. Many sections are somewhat difficult to read and do not use scientific scholarly language. The English grammar, syntax and punctuation should be reviewed and improved.
