Reviewer's report:

Thank you for responding to my comments. I'm afraid I still have some confusion over the information included in Table 5. It is now clear from the introduction and methods the relevance of Bugaj et al study and that the results from this paper are being used as a baseline measure for the results in your paper. However, when looking at the Table 5 I am still a little confused. What is the reference (Hannover et al., 2004) and data supplies for 'norm sample mean' for the SOC-29, is this comparison data from another study? Could you please clarify?
