Reviewer's report:

Thank you submitting this manuscript to BMC Med Ed. Several issues need to be addressed before the manuscript is considered for publication.

The title of the manuscript could be improved and looks quite long with repetitions; a suggested topic is given below:

Attitudes of Chinese health sciences postgraduate students' to use of information and communication technology in global health research

There are multiple errors of spelling/ grammar and language etc and a thorough review for language corrections is recommended. Some errors are highlighted in the attached annotated pdf file

Not clear why the questionnaire was not piloted?

In which language was the questionnaire administered?

The data analysis is mainly presented as frequencies and percentages. Additional statistical analyses such as ANOVA / MANOVA would be useful to identify differences based on demographics (age / gender and participating universities).

There is a significant repetition of the results in the discussion. This needs to be addressed and the discussion needs to focus on similarities, differences with the published studies on the topic and any unique findings of the research itself.
