The authors have made substantial changes to the manuscript and their efforts are appreciated. The paper is now more straightforward and easier to follow.

That being said, the following items could still be addressed:

1. In-text citations go outside of the punctuation
2. In results, interpretation of the paired t-test (Results Line 10) state "significant number of students" which is inaccurate interpretation of the results. Would be better to state "the average improvement was significant" or something along those lines. You are comparing the scores not the number of students
3. Results Line 22- would be helpful to mention once that the scores were out of 5 (I believe)
4. Table 4 reports un-paired t-test but I feel the analysis should be paired? Perhaps I'm misunderstanding the study design but isn't this data paired in nature?
