Version: 1 Date: 08 Nov 2015

Reviewer’s report:

Thank for this much improved paper from its original version - well done. It seems necessary that only one reference must be added in this manuscript.

You stated that there are no studies in the literature about why living status may be linked to lack of capacity. In an our study, there was a statistically significant difference between MacMAC-T reasoning scores and living status (living alone or with someone) of psychiatric patients. Also please refer to this study in your manuscript. (Er RA; Sehiralti M, Aker AT. (2013). Preliminary Turkish study of psychiatric inpatients'competence to make treatment decisions. Asia Pasific Psychiatry. 5(1):E9-E18).
